Covering the West Nile Virus Story

West Nile Virus has spread quickly across the United States during the past three years, making national headlines in almost every corner of the country.

In its path lie many Army posts and installations. It would follow, therefore, that major post and unit newspapers give ample coverage to the virus focusing in on its dangers and prevention. Several Army newspapers have done a great service by providing such facts to readers. The West Nile Virus is only one of several dangers carried by mosquitoes.

From the Field

Top — "Sarah, my love for you is deathless — it seems to bind me to you with mighty cables that nothing but omnipotence could break; and yet my love of country comes over me like a strong wind and bears me irresistibly on with all these chains to the battlefield." These words from a major written in 1861 to his wife. These and other mighty words were captured in the article "War Letters," produced by Pfc. Holly Beth Mann in the August issue of the Fort Hood SENTINEL (broadsheet). Left — Walter Reed's September 6 STRIPE (tabloid) was among the first Army newspapers to cover the events of the one-year anniversary of the Sep. 11, 2001 terrorists' acts. Bernard Little, editor. Right — The September anniversary issue of SOLDIERS (magazine) is a collector's item. Superbly assembled with arresting visuals and several articles, the issue, "Attack On America," was a group effort by the magazine's staff led by its editor, Gil High, and editor in chief, Lt. Col. John E. Suttle.

Left — The Summer 2002 issue of DUTY FIRST, the 32-page magazine of the 1st Inf. Div. In Germany, is loaded with boldly enlarged photos and attention grabbing layouts to tell the division's story. DUTY FIRST is edited by the watchful eye of Spc. Jennifer Sardam, who also writes and takes great photographs. Right — Two headlines in need of some pointers. Defining a soldier's involvement in war as a "stint" is insulting, to say the least. I'd be upset if someone were to label my tours in the Korean and Vietnam wars as "stints." The headline would have said it all by deleting "stint." The headline below it reflects a common shortcoming in journalism: editorializing, and that includes headlines. Surely, Mr. Rumsfeld's visit lifted spirits on post, but a good writer reports and makes no judgments.

From left — ENVIRONMENTAL UPDATE (tabloid), a quarterly product of the U.S. Army Environmental Center, is a package of quality news and information about the Army's environmental programs and processes. It's well-edited and designed by Neal Snyder. The Spring 2002 issue is shown. Another quality tabloid belongs to Corps of Engineers headquarters in Washington, D.C. It's ENGINEER UPDATE, packed with well-written articles, excellent photos and attractive layouts, all guided by veteran Army editor, Bernard Tate. The August 2002 is shown. Visually, Fort Huachuca's SCOUT has joined the ranks of broadsheets producing bold and innovative page layouts. The issue shown is but one of many Sgt. 1st Class Donald Sparks has created; they're all notable. Sparks is leaving a lasting footprint on the SCOUT. An excellent standing column, "Ask ASAP," goes bluntly to the point: if you've got drug and alcohol problems, you've got serious problems, but help is available. "The Cocaine Blues" is one of six articles on detoxification told with no holds barred by Donna Nicosia, a member of Fort Jackson's Army Substance Abuse Program. The columns appears in Fort Jackson's LEADER. Linda Lyly, editor.

From left — Fort Sill's CANNONEER (broadsheet) opens its Op/Ed page to comments from the readership. And why not. Army newspapers support the commander, but let's not forget, they also serve the troops. Open and frank exchange of thoughts and ideas is healthy in any organization. Cannoneer Poll, the column which asks the questions, always asks many readers to express their opinions to such questions as "What Army Benefit Do You Most Appreciate?" Tonya L. Riley, editor. The August 15 FRONTLINE (broadsheet) wasn't shy "telling it like it is" when it comes to law breakers on Fort Stewart. The Police Reports, published in the August 15 issue, listed series of charges brought against members of the post. The charges ranged from littering, improper storage of weapons, simple assault to possession of marijuana. Readers get the word the command has not tolerance for lawbreakers. PS magazine is an excellent source of information on preventive maintenance, accompanied by creative full-color illustrations. Post and unit newspapers should consider articles on maintenance and ways and means to keeping equipment in top shape. PS magazine has some ready-made on the subject. Email the magazine at — psmag@logsa.army.mil.

From left — Fort McPherson's SENTINEL (tabloid) has a creative Army journalist on its staff, one just awarded DA's Journalist Award; he's Sgt. Neil C. Jones. Jones, who has produced many great stories, photographs and layouts has added another to his resume, "God's Soldiers," published Aug. 2. Upper right — Big and bold are only two words to describe this layout in the 6th ASG CITIZEN (tabloid). The story and photos are the handiwork of Maria Higgins. Hugh C. McBride, editor. Right — Compiling any special issue is no easy task and the one published by the 98th ASG CRUSADER (tabloid) 2002—2003 "Welcome" issue is an excellent example of just how well hard work pays off. It's an outstanding product. Olivia Feher, editor.

About the Field

Three outstanding PA NCOs are attending the Sergeants Major Academy at Fort Bliss. This is an important step for them for a move up to the top enlisted rank. They are Master Sergeants Larry Lane, John Brenci and Eric Parris.

Another top NCO, Master Sergeant Lisa Hunter is also at the Sergeants Major Academy, serving as the school's PA NCOIC and editor of the NCO JOURNAL.

The number of Army journalists attending DINFOS' Newspaper Editor's Course has been increasing during the past several courses. Included among those currently taking instruction are: Spc. LeeAnn Lloyd, MONITOR; Pfc. Natalie Schlotman, FRONTLINE; Ms. Yolanda Hag-

berg, NEWS LEADER; and Staff Sgt. Carolanne Diggs, SUSTAINER (Germany).

Sgt. Kelly McCargo has taken the editor's slot of the LIGHTNING WARRIOR DISTATCH, a quarterly magazine of the 93rd Signal Brigade at Fort Gordon. McCargo previously served on the staff of the award-winning INDIANHEAD of the 2nd Inf. Div. In Korea. Maj. Shirley Tyra is the 93rd's PAO.

Sgt. Jeremy Heckler, formerly a staffer with the Fort Riley POST, has moved westward and joined the NORTHWEST GUARDIAN, Fort Lewis' weekly CE broadsheet. He's listed among top Army journalists and for good reason.

Words, phrases and their particulars

"...and is on exhibition at the Smithsonian Institute." The correct name of the organization is Smithsonian Institution, not, Institute.

Allude/refer — When you allude to something or someone, you do so indirectly—that is, without naming the person, place or thing. But, when you refer to something or someone, you do so directly; you specify the person, place or thing.

"... going to heaven above." This phrase is accepted in song and poetry, but not in a news or feature story. Where is heaven if not above?

"It has been nearly 50 years ago since the end of the Korean War." Ago and since together, no! Use one or the other, but not both in the same sentence. "It has been nearly 50 years since the..." Another approach: "The Korean War ended nearly 50 years ago."

"The exercise concluded with an artillery barrage." Conclude is often misused. It's a mental process, not a physical one. You conclude mentally, but end physically. End should have been used.

Excellence in Verbal and Visual Communication

THE SHIELD (Criminal Investigation Command—newsletter) for its marked editorial and graphic improvements. Kenneth Miller, editor.

CANNONEER (Fort Sill—broadsheet) for its extensive coverage of the West Nile Virus, including “West Nile Virus Detected Here,” produced by Fort Sill News Service, published August 29.
